NEW QUESTION: 3
An audit of customer accounts receivable found that outstanding receivables as a percentage of revenue had increased significantly during the past two years. The increase was attributed to the extension of credit, at the urging of the marketing department, to a number of companies that were not credit worthy.
Which of the following would be least useful in monitoring the disposition of this finding?
A. Updates from the information technology division regarding implementation of a new accounts receivable system.
B. Information from the credit and marketing personnel assigned the responsibility for reevaluating credit policies.
C. Responses from the manager of accounts receivable regarding collection of outstanding receivables.
D. Periodic updates from the controller regarding the status of corrective actions.
Answer: A
