NEW QUESTION: 1

You can set the value of an item in your application by using which four methods?

- A. Using bind variables to reference session state of a specified item
- B. Form submission
- C. By using built-in substitution strings
- D. Application or page computations
- E. By invoking the f procedure in an HTTP request

Answer: B,C,D,E

Explanation:

A: When the page is submitted, Oracle Application Express captures the value entered in the field and stores the value for future use.

B: You can use substitution strings in Application Builder in the following ways:

* Include a substitution string within a template to reference component values

* Reference page or application items using &ITEM. syntax

* Use built-in substitution strings to achieve a specific type of functionality. Application Builder supports a number of built-in substitution strings. You may need to reference these values to achieve specific types of functionality.

Example: APP_SESSION

APP_SESSION is one of the most commonly used built-in substitution strings. You can use this substitution string to create hypertext links between application pages that maintain a session state by passing the session number. Note that you can also use the substitution string SESSION in place of APP_SESSION.

E: The "f" procedure is widely known and well covered in the Oracle APEX User Guide.

The following example resets the value of the items THE_EMPNO and THE_DEPTNO.

f?p=100:5:&APP_SESSION.:NO:THE_EMPNO,THE_DEPTNO

Note:

It can be used to create links between pages in your application using the following syntax:

```
f?p=App:Page:Session:Request:Debug:ClearCache:itemNames:itemValues:PrinterFriendly

Incorrect answers:

C: You can use bind variables within application processes and SQL query regions to reference item session state.
