NEW QUESTION: 1
A wool sock, a toilet seat, Oriental silk -- out of a millennium of mud comes proof that the globe-traveling Vikings weren't the ravaging rovers historians made them to be.
"The old English image of the Vikings as simply blood-thirsty bands of pillagers vanished with these finds," says Richard Hall, an archaeologist.
"We dug down and found a cocoon of water-logging, a time capsule of everyday life," said Hall, who led a tour Wednesday through a muddy concrete hall fashioned out of the hole left from the excavation.
Hall was one of some 400 people who, for five years, dug up the leftovers of the lives of an estimated 30,000 Vikings. Workers discovered the sophisticated settlement when a central district of York was leveled for rebuilding.
Starting April 14, 1984, electric cars will carry tourists through a tunnel of time that goes back to 866 A.D., when the Vikings came to York, 188 miles northwest of London.
Archaeologists are eager to display what they found in a $3.9 million reconstruction of Jorvik, the Anglo- Saxon name for the settlement.
"We have skeletons, 15,000 objects, a quarter-of-a- million pieces of pottery, some of the best reserved Viking-age buildings ever discovered and five tons of animal bones," Hall said.

The digs revealed intimate details of Viking life. There is a toilet seat, keys, tools, games counters, the seeds in the blackberries they picked and a knitted woolen sock.
"They were a great trading nation with a sophisticated monetary system," Hall said.
"We will show the range of products in which they traded -- silk from the Far East, amber from the Baltic, pottery from the Rhineland, cowrie shells from the Indian Ocean." As used in the passage ravaging means
